This website discusses a system of spiritual healing which is soft, gentle, cleansing, subjective and acts on spirit. I shall endeavour to be as accurate as I can in my statements, but these will not (in the main) be backed by controlled experiment (eg double blind clinical trials) or other documentary evidence, because these do not apply to spirit or its space. (Spirit is in a different space.)

Many people, especially materialists, have a misunderstanding of disease. They think that disease is real, and that it is the actual problem. So they get drawn into fighting a war against disease: one negative energy chasing another.

Spiritual people have a different point of view. They understand that we are separate from the disease. The disease is not us, although we have allowed it to come about. However, it has a purpose. It is to show us where we are weak. It is there to teach us a lesson. We understand that there is a process of creation in which we participate. God is the creator and He is perfect. However, we are co-creators with Him, and we have messed up. Disease is when we are misusing the process of creation, to create patterns which attract disease. These patterns are normally negative: negative thoughts, negative emotions, negative destructive patterns of spirit. Healing is a process of releasing these negative patterns, transmuting them into or replacing them with positive patterns (eg love), and learning to do this.

Healing is thus learning process and as with any learning process, some people learn faster than others. Some people need special coaching (ie boosts), etc. Thus my i-treatments are really courses of instruction, teaching you how to be healthy in balance and harmony with God and nature. There are two reasons for this:

1. My i-remedies contain living information. Please note, just as an i-pad is not a pad, so an i-remedy is not a remedy. They are not chemical. They contain patterns (vibrations) of the life force, of spirit, from flowers and minerals, imprinted into water using sunlight. Information is not a chemical, but patterns of bits. So my i-remedies are living information. They are not medicines, but instructions, teaching you how to be alive and well.
2. The i-treatment, based in i-remedies (so it is not a treatment), is not of a fixed length, but variable according to people's needs, just as pupils can need different coaching to master a subject.

Materialism is Wrong about Life

One of the fundamental errors of materialists is to believe in matter alone, because by so doing they deny themselves the right to overcome it, and thus enslave themselves.

If we go back 800 years we find a Church and society which is much more spiritual. If we study the writings of Robert Grosseteste, the first Chancellor of Oxford University, we see that it is perfectly possible to do experimental and mathematical physics within the framework of Christian neoplatonism, which was the official philosophy of the day (and a bit like string theory, but with God at the top). Then came Averroes and the debate about reason. Reason came in and took science away from Christian metaphysics. William of Ockham, Padua University, Copernicus and Galileo threw out spirit (Galileo did not need spirit to explain balls moving down an inclined plane!). This gave us modern science based on dead matter.

800 years later we see the consequences. Our “science” is destroying the environment, even threatening life itself (eg nuclear weapons), we cannot cure most diseases, and we are surrounded by stress, pollution (petrochemicals, heavy metals) and radiation (pulsed microwaves, nuclear, etc). The toll on the biosphere and our lives is intolerable.

The interesting thing is that science has found by its own standards that its methods only explain 4% of the Universe. The other 96% appears to be “dark energy” and “dark matter”, but nobody knows what these are. Despite its obsession with matter, science cannot explain 96% of the Universe, and so its authority has been seriously undermined! Some astronomers and physicists think there is a parallel or mirror universe. However, this has not yet been established, although there is some evidence.

In his book The Science Delusion Rupert Sheldrake shows that science is wrong in a number of additional ways. It is not possible for science to be the truth and wrong at the same time. If it is wrong, it has to be admitted. And it is not just science which is wrong - it is the philosophy of materialism which is wrong. The idea that everything is made of matter only explains 4% of the Universe. QED!

God has trumped materialists with the other 96% being made partly of dark energy (68%) and the rest of dark matter (28%), neither of which are known to science. So the idea that everything is made of matter is dead.

2000 years ago Aristotle wrote “Physics is based upon fact and is wrong. Metaphysics cannot be proven, but is the real truth.” Scientists have never proven him wrong. The problem is that science is wrong about life. In fact there is evidence that there is a parallel universe inside your body. My i-remedies work in this parallel Universe. Therefore they should not be judged by the methods of dead materialist science.

Learning How to be Healthy

As human beings get away from nature, so our diseases get further away from nature. People look for natural cures and find they don't work, so they give up. They even conclude that life is unreliable, and only a more powerful, more invasive man-made treatment will do the trick, namely something which zaps the disease. In fact the opposite is the case. The first step is not to zap the disease, because that short-circuits God and causes side-effects, and often new diseases as the entropy is pushed in more deeply.

The solution is to realise that the further you are from nature, the farther you have to go to get back to nature. Since life is gentle, this means you have many more gentle steps to take to get back to nature and health, than a simple problem like a fall, a bruise or broken bone. In other words the farther from nature, the more complex the disease, and the more complex the course of instruction needed to heal it.

When you learn a new subject, you find a professor, you take the courses, you learn what you are taught. When you think you have learnt enough, you take an exam, and if you have, you will pass. Healing is similar. When you have absorbed enough of the right kinds of living information, and learnt from them and become strong enough, then you will push out the virus. Note that it is not the i-remedies which push out the virus (water cannot), but your own immune system when it becomes strong enough. So you are actively involved in this process. If the virus does not go, there will be reasons, lessons you still need to learn, negative patterns you need to release, so you will need additional boosts. Then when you have learnt all the lessons and become strong enough, you will pass your exam, and the virus will go.

The Method of Learning

When you study, you go to classes, you take lessons, you read and learn. You are actively involved and make a deliberate effort to learn. The same is true with healing. You are no longer a passive bystander, but are actively involved in the process, which strengthens and empowers you. It helps if it is your intention to get well. Then you will look to other ways to boost your health (such as with nutrition, meditation, yoga, exercise, massage, sound) and you will be able to cope with healing reactions.

As you get stronger, you may plateau, or even have set-backs. This can happen if you have another (hidden) infection (such as EBV - see below), which is suppressing your immune system and blocking the i-treatment. However, you are actively involved, you recognise the problem and ask me for a solution, which I often have because I have i-treatments for many of the more common infections. In this way, you are pro-active and see the i-treatment through until you get the results you want. Please note, I do not sell cures, I just sell the tools and you have to put them together to get the results you want. Of course I will help as best I can.

Other Infections

One of the main problems with this approach is other infections, which suppress the immune system in other ways, may block the Lyme i-treatment. The solution is to get yourself tested for other infections such as EBV, CMV, Coxsackie viruses, H1N1, HHV6, streptococcus, staphylococcus, candida, and possibly others. You may think you do not have any of these infections, but some (eg EBV) are quite common, and once they become chronic, they become hidden and you do not know you still have them in your system. Once you know what other infections you have, then you can take the boosts (which I have) to help you learn the different lessons of these other infections and strengthen you against them. Once you start to weaken them, the Lyme i-treatment will work more effectively.

People with Lyme, often have one or more co-infections, such as babesia, bartonella, ehrlichiosis, mycoplasma. These are all provided for in the Lyme i-treatment, or in the co-infections box. However, if you also have TB, syphilis, gonorrhoea, or HIV, you need to use orthodox methods.

Lyme Disease

In the case of Lyme disease, there is even evidence on the internet that it is man-made (genetic engineering). Whether this is so, is irrelevant. We forgive our enemies and move on. The disease exists and has to be dealt with. One characteristic of the disease is that it is very complex. If you google its symptoms, you will find claims that it is the “great imitator”, (like syphilis) which simulates 100, 300 even 600 diseases or conditions. No one can agree. It is as if Lyme disease is almost all diseases.

As a result, the course of learning prompted by the presence of Lyme disease is a complex one. If you like the disease is extremely complex, and so the course is too. It does not cover all the symptoms of Lyme, but focuses on helping the immune system evolve resistance the inner core of the disease. The i-treatment teaches the core lessons which have to be learnt to stand up to and overcome Lyme. Some people may require additional boosts, of which I have many.

If you look back at the history of diseases, you will see that when syphilis first came to Europe, people dropped like flies from it. Then over time, people started to develop stronger immune systems and became more resistant to it. For example, I know one case of a nurse who caught syphilis, and had so few symptoms that she did not know about it until she had a medical for a visa application. This is how resistant people have become to it. (I also know cases of TB, which still runs in families, where there are so few symptoms that it is not treated, even though it could be cured.) So there is considerable evidence that the immune system can evolve over time. In addition to boosting your immune system, the Lyme i-treatment helps it to evolve much more quickly to stand up to the Lyme.

So how do you get the immune system to evolve? There is research by a tiny handful of physicists into the information flows through the food chain and living organisms, which my work is based upon. My i-remedies contain living information. As you absorb this living information, you lower your entropy levels and become more highly organised. There are reasons to believe this is how evolution takes place. It is a learning process. Some people have more learning to do than others.

Meaning of Lyme

I believe that Lyme has a meaning, a purpose, to bring us back to God. We have got away from God and nature, yet here is a disease which we cannot defeat with a quick fix from antibiotics. And it causes so many things to go wrong, that you practically have to be reborn, to overcome it. I believe that is its purpose. I recently found that there is a link between faith in God and the immune system. It seems that Lyme breaks the link between one's brain and God, which destroys many Lyme patients faith in God. God is the unity of creation, and His unity is the foundation for the unity of the immune system. By destroying this unity, Lyme takes over your immune system and can do almost anything it wants. I now have a i-remedy which rebuilds the unity at the centre of your brain and immune system.

Conclusions

Science is a false evolutionary path because it destroys the environment, which our life depends upon.
